General information and explanatory notes (retain for future reference)

Why do I need a Licence to Take and Use Groundwater and Operate Works?

Under the provisions of the Water Act 1989, any person who wishes to take and use groundwater other than solely for domestic and/or stock purposes must first obtain a licence to take and use water and operate the groundwater works.

What does a Licence to Take and Use Water and a Licence to Operate Works authorise?

A Licence to Take and Use groundwater authorises the licensee to extract groundwater and use it for irrigation, commercial or other licensable purposes. A licence to operate works authorises the licensee to operate the specified groundwater bore/s for the purpose of extracting water.

What types of water use are licensable?

A licence is required if you intend to use the water for irrigation or for supplying a dairy shed, feedlot, piggeries or poultry farm. A licence is also required if the water is to be used on recreational or sporting fields or in conjunction with the operation of a commercial business or premises. This includes mining, aquaculture, water bottling, the provision of guest accommodation and watering commercial grounds or gardens.

Is a licence issued for a fixed term?

Licences are generally issued for a fixed term of up to 15 years. Licensees may apply to renew a licence by submitting an application prior to the expiry date. GMW will notify licensees six months prior to the licence expiring that the licence is due to expire and will request the submission of an application to renew the licence. Approval of an application to renew a licence is not automatic and is subject to an assessment by GMW. If during the term of a licence an application to amend the licence is approved, the amended licence will only be issued for the remainder of the original term.

Does a bore need to be constructed before I apply for a Licence to Take and Use Water?

If you wish to access groundwater for any licensable purpose you will need to have access to an existing bore prior to making application for a Licence to take and use water. If you do not have access to a bore and would like to construct a bore it is important to be aware that the process of constructing a bore can be costly and time consuming. GMW recommends that you fully investigate the potential for groundwater in your area prior to making application. If you decide to construct a bore you must make application for a Licence to Construct Works prior to engaging a driller to carry out the work. Application forms can be downloaded from the GMW website or are available by contacting the Licensing Unit on 1800 013 357. For information about groundwater availability in your area you can visit www.ourwater.vic.gov.au/environment/groundwater or contact GMW.

Are their limits or restrictions on accessing groundwater?

Water Supply Protection Areas (WSPAs) and Groundwater Management Areas (GMAs) have been established in areas where groundwater has been, or has the potential to be, intensively developed. Groundwater management plans apply in these areas to ensure that use of groundwater is sustainable. In WSPAs and GMAs licence entitlements are limited by a cap called a Permissible Consumptive Volume (PCV). A PCV may restrict or prevent the issuing of new licence entitlements and may mean that you can only access groundwater for irrigation or commercial use by trading licence entitlement from another licensee in that area.

You are urged to contact GMW prior to making an application to determine whether restrictions or conditions apply to groundwater entitlement in your area. For information and maps of WSPAs and GMAs, please refer to the GMW website at www.g-mwater.com.au/water-resources/ground-water

Do I have to advertise my application in the newspaper or notify my neighbours?

After you lodge your application, GMW will notify you in writing if you are required to advertise and/or notify your neighbours. GMW will send out the proforma for advertising and notification to neighbours, this will include a reference number which relates to your application. If the volume sought in the application is greater than 20ML you will be required to advertise and notify neighbours, if the volume is 19ML or less, only notification of neighbours will apply.

Note: If you have notified your neighbours of your intention to construct works and extract groundwater as part of an application for a Licence to Construct Works within the last 12 months, further notification will not be required for this application providing the previously advertised entitlement volume and land description has not changed and is associated with this licence.

What does the application fee cover?

Application fees fund the full cost of undertaking a licence assessment in accordance with GMW's obligations under the Water Act 1989. This includes administering the application, undertaking a site inspection and reviewing any submissions made in relation to your application. In many cases a technical assessment may be required to determine if extraction of groundwater may have any adverse impacts on other groundwater users in your area or the environment. The costs of technical investigations are borne by the applicant.

The application fee structure varies depending upon the volume requested. This is because the assessment procedures for higher volume applications require additional work to be undertaken. If your licence is approved it will be recorded in the Victorian Water Register and you will receive a copy of the licence document.

Are there ongoing costs associated with having a Licence?

Yes, a Licence to Take and Use Water is subject to annual fixed charges, issued by GMW in July each year. For details about which charges will apply to your licence, please contact the Licensing Unit.

Do I have to pay for the entitlement issued under the new Licence?

Yes, a one-off capital charge applies to new licence entitlements issued by GMW or where approval is given to increase an existing licence entitlement.

Note: Applications for new or increased licence volumes in the Shepparton Irrigation Region Water Supply Protection Area are not subject to payment of the capital charge. This is because extraction of groundwater under these licences is also encouraged as a salinity control measure.

What is Capital Charge used for?

Revenue generated by the capital charge is used by GMW to fund groundwater resource planning activities. This includes the development of Groundwater Management Plans, groundwater resource planning and assessment and the establishment of groundwater monitoring networks to ensure the groundwater resources are managed in a sustainable manner.

How is the Capital Charge calculated?

The current capital charge for a new (or increased) licence entitlement is calculated at the rate of $158.00 per megalitre for 2015/2016. Charges are reviewed annually.

If new licence entitlement is not being issued in my area can I get access to an entitlement?

In some areas, you may be able to purchase existing entitlement from another licensee who does not wish to utilise their full entitlement volume.

In this case you will need to purchase entitlement from an existing licence holder and make application for a temporary or permanent transfer of the licence volume. You will also need to make application for a Licence to Take and Use Groundwater and Operate Works with an entitlement volume of zero.

For more information about groundwater trading in your area you can contact your local water broker or visit: <http://www.g-mwater.com.au/water-resources/ground-water/groundwatertrading>

What happens after I lodge my application?

After you lodge your application GMW will notify you in writing that it has been received. The timeframe to complete an assessment will vary depending on the nature of your application. There may be delays if you are required to engage a consultant to conduct a technical assessment in support of your application. GMW cannot make a decision in relation to an application until all relevant information is received (this includes notification to neighbours and advertising). If delays are expected you will be notified by GMW. When the decision has been made to your application you will notified in writing of the outcome, either that the application has been approved or refused. Application fees are not refundable if an application is refused.
