General information and explanatory notes (retain for future reference)

Why do I need to register my domestic & stock dam?

New regulations require all new household dams in rural-urban fringe areas in Victoria to be registered with rural water corporations. Property owners in rural residential areas must register any new aesthetic dam, domestic and stock dam, or plans to significantly alter existing dams before commencing any works.

The regulations came into effect on 1 March 2011. Any dams constructed/ altered after this date are subject to the new regulations.

If you are unsure whether you need to register your dam refer to the attached flowchart.

Where can I find out more information about the registration program?

Information is available from the Department of Sustainability and Environment website at www.ourwater.vic.gov.au/saving/farms/dams, or contact the Licensing and we will send you out some information.

What is a rural residential area?

A rural residential area is any property located within the rural living zone, green wedge zones and any residential zone as defined by Victoria's Planning Schemes, or any property that is eight hectares (20 acres) or smaller.

You can check with your local council if your property is in a rural residential zone. Property owners can also find out what zone they live in by visiting the website: <http://services.land.vic.gov.au/landchannel/jsp/map/PlanningMapsIntro.jsp>

Land owners with existing dams in rural residential areas will not need to register them unless they want to significantly alter them. If you are unsure about the nature of an alteration please contact the Licensing Unit.

What if I am not in a rural residential area?

Property owners who live outside a rural residential area, with a property size greater than eight hectares; do not need to register their domestic and stock dams.

Do I need to register my dam if I intend to apply for a licence to construct a dam or a licence take and use water?

No, if you require a surface water licence (take and use) or a dam construction licence then you do not need to also register your dam. Your licence application form is sufficient for the purpose of the regulation.

If you are unsure whether you require a licence refer to the attached flowchart.

Are there any ongoing fees for registering a domestic and stock dam?

No, your application fee covers the costs of recording the details of your dam in the Victorian Water Register. Once this is completed there are no ongoing fees applicable.

Question 1 – Application Type

Indicate whether you intend to either construct a new dam, or alter an existing dam for domestic and stock or aesthetic purposes.

Question 2 – Applicant/s details

One or more parties may apply to register the construction or alteration of the dam.

Question 3 – Description of land on which the dam is / or is proposed to be located.

Applicants must provide details of the land/s where the dam will (or has been) constructed. Please ensure the information reflects the current description of the land titles. This information is normally available on your council rates notice or can be obtained from the land titles office.

How can I get a copy of my land titles?

You can obtain a registered search statement for land titles by:

- Accessing the Land Titles office via the internet at www.land.vic.gov.au or phone (03) 8636 2456
- Contacting your solicitor or legal advisor to conduct the search on your behalf (fees may apply)

Question 4– Has a Waterway Determination been completed for the proposed dam site?

Please indicate whether a waterway determination has been conducted for this site. A waterway determination is normally carried out by GMW prior to the construction of any dam to provide land owners with information about whether the proposed site is located on a waterway and is subject to a requirement to obtain a licence to construct and/or operate the dam. The waterway determination will also provide information in relation to whether you may require a Licence to Take and Use Water for the proposed or altered dam.

If you proceed with an application for a waterway determination there is an application fee of $805.00 for 2016/2017. This fee includes the fee to register the dam. Please contact the Licensing Unit for further information.

If a waterway determination has not been completed you may still apply to register your dam and G-MW will contact you to provide further information about potential licensing requirements when your application is received.

Question 5 – Details of proposed dam works

You must answer all questions about the proposed dam works. If you are unsure of the information required please contact the Licensing Unit.

The following calculation should be used to determine the storage capacity of the dam:

Surface area X max wall height to spillway X 0.4 (takes into consideration storage batters) ÷ 1000 = storage capacity in megalitres.

You must indicate on the site plan provided the location of the dam on the property relevant to other features. You should also include the offset (distance) between the proposed dam and the property boundaries. If you are registering the alteration of an existing dam you should also indicate the proposed changes to the dam (eg: size, wall height or layout etc).
