General information and explanatory notes (retain for future reference)

What is a bore?

Bores are usually thought of as drilled holes constructed by drilling rigs. However the definition of a bore also includes sumps, wells and drag lines as well as any excavation used to intercept, collect and store groundwater for the purpose of taking and using it.

Why do I need to register my domestic & stock bore?

Registering your bore will ensure GMW can consider your domestic and stock use if other groundwater users make application to increase groundwater extraction in your area. Registering your bore also provides valuable information for the future planning and management of groundwater resources in your area.

What are domestic and/or stock purposes?

If you are the owner or occupier of land on which a bore is located you may have the right (sometimes called a private right) to take and use water solely for the purposes of:

- household use
- watering of stock and pets
- watering of a kitchen garden (up to 0.4 hectares)

Are there any ongoing fees for registering a domestic and stock bore?

No. If you own or occupy the land where the bore is located, you are authorised to take water free of charge providing the water is used for domestic and stock purposes only.
